Pines 5.0 out of 5 stars Made in January, 2009, this converter outperforms any currently made product of its type. Although it lacks the recently added features, such as an HDMI output jack or TV programming titles, it shines in the reliability, sensitivity and picture quality categories. What a pleasure to see a properly performing converter come out of its 7 year old box.http://www.kosmetykalekarska.pl/\_kosmetykalekarska/bushnell-gps-onix-400-manual.xml

Maybe because this unit was manufactured when digital transmissions were mandated would account for its high quality, or it could simply be the quality control of the manufacturer; whatever the reason, this is a great product. Its only minor downside is the printing of the control functions on the remote control. The letters are too dull and too small to read easily in a semilit room. Otherwise, this is the best DTV converter I have used, and Ive gone through too many of them.Attractive, Great Remote. Highly Recommend My favorite feature is that it will convert LD digital signals to analog. This is rare. Most add on converters only convert HD digital, not LD digital. There is a station in Columbus Ohio that broadcasts 6 channels in LD 480i and none of the other converters I own are able to receive and translate the LD signal to analog. For this reason alone I rate this a really great tuner. Extremely nice to get LD as well as HD. The second great feature is the remote. It has recall some remotes dont, easy to access and view signal meter, easy to use buttons. Nice remote. Third really good feature is you can tune stations on the box without the remote. This is a rare feature. Lastly, the box itself is attractive. The unit has a very pretty blue LED light when unit is on, red LED when unit is off. LEDs are not the silly little round type, the LED light is about 2 inches long, and diamond shaped. Very attractive touch. The only shortfall is the unit does not have an S video connector to TV. It has only the usual RG cable and RCA phono connections for TV signal out. But these work OK. Summation Great, really great unit. Love, love, love being able to watch LD TV as well as HD TV. Very easy to use remote, well designed, very attractive LEDs. I am very pleased with this unit. Of the dozen or so I have owned, this is by far the best. If I ever need another converter I will definately buy this model again.http://www.w-f-l.de/user\_img/bushnell-golf-manuals.xml

September 2018 Update Still using this converter for my Old School TVs, continues to work flawlessly. Highly recommend this make and model converter. Probably the best ever made. With cable on the old TV sets you get a picture that is not full screen. With most of the standard free TV channels the picture is full screen. I like the idea of being able to switch to full screen whenever the programs are on standard TV. I find that they are more enjoyable viewing them this way. I have an analog big screen TV that is 30 years old and as long as it is working I refused to buy the updated modern screen TV. The Zenith is my favorite box to date. The remote is intuitive and requires only one battery. Best remote I've used period. We have been watching broadcast TV for decades, before and after the switch over to digital signals several years ago. We use two four bay UHF indoor antennas facing different directions to get all the local channels. One of our tuner boxes failed recently and after trying several new boxes, and doing some research, settled on this older device. We've gone from eleven to twenty three channels. This box is way more sensitive to weak signals than our old Magnavox tuner boxes. While it lacks modern touches like USB and HDMI, the fine remote, ease of configuration and tuner sensitivity make up for it and it's ideal for those living in fringe areas. We use it with homemade four bay UHF antennas. We may buy another for a spare since none of the newer models have such great sensitivity to weak signals. The previous digital TV tuner would lose sound when the antenna signal was bad and it wasn't getting all of the channels that my mom likes, so I bought this expensive Zenith digital TV tuner. This tuner does not lose signal on weak channels. We live in Southern California and this tuner gets approximately 175 channels. The picture quality is great.

The channels no longer lose antenna signal strength when someone walks past the TV and my mom no longer loses sound when an antenna signal is weak. Overall, she loves the Zenith Digital TV Tuner. We are using an Amazon Basics Leaf Antenna which is also amplified by the Amazon Basics TV antenna amplifier. Will this work if I already have an antenna? It depends on your location which channels you receive. The DTT901 comes with a nice Universal remote control. Kind of an Amazon failure in my opinion. On the Zenith unit I have, it will come with RCA cables the typical Yellow, Red, and White tipped connector to TVs. So, yes, you can connect via RCA cords or coaxial cable, depending on your TV inputs. This is for older TVs that do not have digital tuners. If you have a newer TV, it is not needed. First, make sure you are using an indoor or outdoor antenna with it. Then, press the power button, on the top, right corner of the remote, to make sure the blue light is on. This is for the 40 free broadcast channels. I normally use the volume controls on the TV remote to adjust the sound while the setting on the digital tuner remains at 100 percent.
