While not the best unit I have used, its certainly great for the price and very userfriendly. Viewing is a breeze, as is recording. It writes to disc quickly and the quality is VERY good for such a cheap product. It recorded what I needed and rarely disappointed. It had a lot of nice features and a great price tag too. I wish my review could end here because, while it lasted, it was a great machine. Sadly, this thing only lasted about 10 months for me. It would skip so bad that it would freeze for a while and then just stop the playback all together. I first thought of just using new discs to fix the problem since I was mainly using discs that have been constantly reused, but the skipping continued on brand new, unstratched discs. Then I decided to use a lens cleaner, BUT no matter how many times I used the cleaner, the skipping would not stop at all. Finally I decided to take it to a repair guy. Sigh, I really liked this machine. The playback was not damaged though, so basically I have a regular DVD player now. <https://www.acsmoz.com/fotos/dell-printer-user-manual.xml>

Here are the DVDRW discs that I purchased that I got to work Verbatim 2X, JVC 2X, and JVC 4x. Here are the DVDRW discs that I purchased that did NOT work MAXELL 2X, Verbatim 4X, Verbatim 6X and Imation 4X. The unit arrived with an Imation DVDR 8X disc and that worked great. Silly me for thinking an Imation 4X DVDRW would work. It didnt As far as DVDR discs, I also had success with MAXELL 16X and HP 16X discs. OK, now that I got the unit to function, how do I rate the unit itself. I give it a strong 4 and perhaps a 5! Now keep in mind, I primarily bought this unit to function as a VCR that is, to record, erase, and rerecord again TV shows! Thus my desire to use the RW discs. Even at the slowest recording SEP speed of 10 hours, the picture and audio are pretty clear. However, if I were recording things to keep, Id probably would go no lower than the EP speed of 6 hours. All things seem to work great, but there are 2 things that irk me when comparing it to my other DVR! 1 The unit does not give you the remaining time or total time of each recorded segment. You are shown the total remaining time of the entire disc, though. 2 You cant split a recorded segment into 2 or more segments. Or at least I havent figured out how to do it! Also, you cant ERASE an entire disc per se. You can however FORMAT the disc which will, in effect, also erase the disc. But, overall, now that I can record on RW discs, I am very pleased with this unit! Please try again later. Please try again later. Claudio DAmato 5.0 out of 5 stars So I am using the NTSC tuner in the Sylvania to watch TV, as well as recording programs on DVD occasionally. <http://cheumst.com/upload/fckeditor/dell-printer-parts-manual.xml>

I notice a slight ground hum, but that could be my cable box or my cabling. I use Ritek 8x and TaiyuYuden Premium 8x DVDRs and they work fine. I think out of 50 or so discs, I had one coaster. This unit is very touchy with DVDRW discs. Most DVDRW brands will not work on this machine, possibly because this unit was made in 2004 and the RW discs made these days just arent compatible. Im not that much of a techie, but I suggest you check out some of the other reviews of this unit here regarding what RW discs to use. The signal quality is excellent at SP and just about as good in LP mode 2 hour and 4 hour respectively. I do not recommend using a slower speed than LP unless you are just recording a game or something you will not want for posterity. Also, I do not recommend an attempt to use two different speeds on the same disc. Some of my favorite movies exceed 2 hours, so having LP speed comes in real handy and the machine does a great job at this speed. Timer recordings are very handy and the machine works very well. Just be very careful that you set the AM and PM right. I recommend starting 1 minute before the actual program comes on, even if you have set the machines internal clock to atomic time. Some stations are notorious for starting shows a little early. Also, set your end time at least a minute after the show ends. Some shows are actually 61 minutes long. The machine will power up by itself and load the blank disk about a minute or two before the timer recording starts. There is a barely noticeable fan noise in the back of the unit, but its quiet.

The magazinestyle user manual is a big one, but easy to read and very thorough. Tech support at Funai, which is free, is awesome. I called them pretty late in the evening last month to find out about how to get a stereo signal and they were very helpful. I called them another time to ask about DVDRW issues and while they could not recommend a brand, they did explain about compatibility issues with this recording format with the new disks. Notes Since the unit is 5 years old, it does not have a HDMI connection. You can have up to 3 RCA or component connections to the unit, 2 from the back and 1 in the front. Handy if you want to transfer some video from your camcorder, another DVD player, etc. DO NOT LOSE YOUR REMOTE as you will need it to set your timer recordings and finalize disks. Its very easy to do just a click on the set up disk option and takes about a minute or so. If you have enough space on your DVDR, you can record up to whatever is left on the disc. For SP speed, DVDRs give me 2 hours and 2 minutes worth of content, LP 4 hours and 4 minutes. I usually always double up movies if I am using LP speed. This machine only has an analog tuner, so you will need to hook it direct to your cable box and then out to TV. Also, you will have to change channels on your cable box before setting your timer recording. You cannot watch another channel while recording as this is only a basic DVR, but its an awesome machine. I have found that buying refurbs is the best way to go, as then you know the machine has been tested to run at spec. I advise you to buy extra warranty coverage. Look into that as with an older machine, its always best to be safe than sorry. I dont see how you can go wrong if you like to record shows or movies to watch later. This machine is a great little workhorse and Sylvania Funai stands behind their products, so expect decent quality. All the best to you! Please try again later. Please try again later. B. Simmons 4.

0 out of 5 stars I liked it so much that I wanted a second one to use in my TV and video production work. This item is easy to configure, the menus make sense, and best of all it works just like a VCR, using discs instead of yesterdays bulky and more expensive video tapes. The image quality in 1 and 2 hour mode is such an improvement over VHS tape it renders any debate or comparison pointless. The remote control is very generic and the button layout is a bit awkward, but thats really a minor point. Why doesnt it matter. I dont know, but my units record on 16x discs properly nevertheless. Do yourself a home entertainment favor. I hope this info is useful. Please try again later. Please try again later. Power on all systems DVR, cable box, TV. Select video mode on TV and using cable box remote select the channel of choice. Well, if you are using HDTV the quality is compromised. Now relax and record OR switch off the TV and power off DVR;but leave the cable box switched on. A catch is you cannot record one channel while watching another. Be sure to leave the channel you want to record lastly! Enjoy!Please try again later. Please try again later. James Easter 4.0 out of 5 stars So if you need a unit compatible with both formats, dont get this one. On the bright side, it seems to happily record to any brand of R media I feed it. And the price is great!Please try again later. Please try again later. Amazon Customer 1.0 out of 5 stars Could not get it to work with a high def TV. The 4X speed DVDR are difficult to find. Tried Office Depot, OfficeMax, Staples, Microcenter, Best Buy and Walgreens! Finally found Princo brand at checkoutstore.com They worked great! And I found that Office Depot sells the sometimes hard to find 4X format, so that's where. I'm headed right after lunch. Thanks. It's a free download. It works 99.99% of the time. The tricky part is that you can ONLY USE 2X speed. I also bought mine from Sears. I have found one that works every time and that is a MAXWELL DVDRW. The trick I think is the speed of the DVD, so you need to use the ones that have Up to Max 2X, 4.7 GB, 2 Hrs. I find these work every time. Hope this helps.
