As I get older, I do not put the high power amps and speakers in the car anymore and just go with the basics. We just listen to IPODs no radio and No CDs too much trouble. That said the BOSS is a high quality radio for the price a bargain actually. I hooked mine up in my Toyota Prius with a METRA kit and a custom interface cable from an EBAY guy from Great Britain only one that has connectors on both ends that fit a DIN standard connection on the back of the BOSS radio. Go to EBAY and type in DIN interface cables that are specific to your cars the British guys has a good selection. I also cut away some of the the metra trim panel so that the radio faceplate head fits over the top of the metra TRIM panel which looks much better and allows me to pull the entire radio out in 10 seconds in the event I ever have to replace it. Anyways hooked it up and installed the IPOD cradle they include lots of different cradles and the fit is very tight and comes up high enough to avoid any movement or flex. It also has two plastic pins on the top that locks into the radio on the top to provide extra stability. Bottom line NO wiggling to cause loose connections. 5 Stars on the structural design alone for IPOD cradle stability. All functionality works as advertised and the radio looks pretty cool with Dock and display. The phone works very well better than my GARMIN blue tooth. Plus you can max out the treble to 7 and keep the base in the middle and the phone audio isn't half bad. If you do not max out treble the phone receive audio will sound slightly muffled but still fine. Great product ! Love it! Highly recommend it.

I am installing another one in my sons Prius since we are all IPOD junkies. Also bass and treble work from any mode. You get some canned equalization modes also. This stereo looked like it was the right product for me since I no longer have any CDs, everything I buy is in digital format from either amazon or the itunes store. Enter the Boss Audio 758DBI. First, let me say that installation was easy. I picked up a stereo kit and was able to wire this guy up during my lunch hour, nothing out of the ordinary. If you are not familiar with putting a stereo in a car, then I suggest you go to a location where they will install it for you. FM quality is great nothing spectacular but it sounds good. USB playback is also great, the builtin decoder seems to be pretty good, great bass reproduction and sound quality you should have comparable speakers that can be driven by the bass loud boost of this stereo. I did not test the SDcard module but I don't expect that the sound quality to be any less. I was overall happy and was even fine that the stereo did not charge my iPhone, I carry a charger in the car for that, and was fine with it. On Monday I was on my drive to work when all of a sudden the left side speakers went out, at first I thought it could be my wiring so I disconnected my iPhone and immediately could hear the fm stereo playback just fine over all 4 speakers. I quickly went to test the bluetooth audio and that worked well over all 4 speakers, everything worked except the ipod dock. The very reason for buying this damn thing, so now I'm in the process of my 2nd RMA and will post my results if the stereo last for anything over 30 days. I like the concept of a stereo dock for my iPhone, that's what I use for music. Today almost a year after my initial purchase I am happy to say that I am happy with the stereo, and its capabilities.

It has had some wear and tear, though I didn't think that the volume knob should be going out in just 3 years my previous stock stereo was in the truck for over 15 years without issue. I've upgraded to a Pioneer digital receiver and I love the integrated features with the iPhone5S. It's missing a dock setup like this BOSS stereo but, I've since purchased a phone mount and it's nicer because I can keep my phone out of direct sunlight. Please try again later. While this unit beats the Pyle PLR27MPBU hands down in style, the Bluetooth quality on both units was riddled with hiss, static, crackles, and pops at louder volumes starting in the 20s out of 40 possible volume levels. I was able to speak to someone at Boss tech support, who said he had never heard of an issue with the Bluetooth sound quality and offered no remedy or troubleshooting. The fact that the Pyle and Boss are so similar in their design and functionality makes me wonder if they're the same cheap, Chinese product, just rebranded differently. After speaking with a car install specialist at a competing retail store, I ended up going with the JVC KDR740BT, which is a bit more expensive, but whose quality is an order of magnitude better than the Boss or Pyle products, featuring more and better features, better and louder sound, and pristine Bluetooth functionality. Please try again later. I have been wanting a radio that incorporates the iPhone into the deck and this was the only one I saw like that. I have heard before that Bosch radios are terrible but I read up on this one and it had some good reviews so I gave it a shot. The dock part is cool but not very loud if you leave it in dock mode.

I ended up putting it in the dock but then using the Bluetooth connection because that was louder. When you are using the dock it is hard to get to any buttons on the right side of the dial since you have to squeeze your finger between the dial and the dock. The Bluetooth phone connection sounds good but the person you are talking to won't be able to hear you good, I think it uses the iPhone's mic which is too far away to use correctly. The directions it comes with are a joke, it is like 4 pages. Any radio you get today you get a textbook of directions but this thing just comes with a flyer. All of this aside I probably would have still given this thing 4 stars and liked it but I could never get it to work. It would play for a few minutes or an hour but then would turn off and then back on like it was shorting out. Sometimes instead of doing that the volume would start to raise on its own or the speaker distribution would change on its own, or the stations would start searching. I would have sent it back then but I installed the radio and 9 speakers all at the same time so I thought I had a short and have a busy life so I slowly went about taking out the radio or a speaker day by day until I verified that everything was wired correctly. By the time I realized it was just a terrible radio it was past the return period so I went and bought a JVC which works a thousand times better and am stuck with a P.O.S. radio I can't even give away to anyone with a clear conscience. Please try again later. Please try again later. Sebastian P 3.0 out of 5 stars Cons its very, very plastic, the remote is confusing and doesn't work unless aimed straight at the sensor on the unit. More in detail I haven't found out, despite all my efforts, how to step the tuner by 0.1 increments. Its stuck on odd decimals and jumps in increments of 0.2 which means that except for the autotune feature which doesn't find all my wanted stations I'm unable to tune it manually.

Aside from playing music from iPhone which works fine the interaction is not without problems music that was paused manually starts to play automatically when the unit is powered. Same thing if you're listening to radio and place the iPhone on the cradle it switches automatically to IPOD input and starts to play. The iPhone goes to sleep when you switch the INPUT from iPod to something else on the unit. When wishing to use another app navigation in my case on the iPhone while listening to radio for example you need to reach back and activate the iPhone manually. Those and a few other quirks are something I'm not able to confirm if they are because of the unit or if the interaction with the iPhone just can't be made easier, but after a while it's tiresome. Also to note it's been said multiple times already, but it's true that the blue glow that can't be adjusted is very, very bright in the dark. Sound in my uneducated opinion the quality of the sound is a bit weak. Bottom line for my specific needs I wanted to have a unit that combines iPhone integration and a cradle, for using just as much the music player than the navigation app, but this one is just too much hassle for that. I've still not found anything better for a similar product, so I'll just end up buying another unit with an iPod stuck somewhere hidden, and buy a normal cradle for the iPhone to be used separately. Anything else Bluetooth, card reader etc I haven't tested and presume they work well or not. Please try again later. Please try again later. Micha 5.0 out of 5 stars I like being able to have my iPod hooked up without having cords and dash mounts all over the place. The light is very bright so that can be an issue at night. The menus are a little tricky at first, but everything is different. The adapters that snap into the iPod dock are a little difficult to remove if you have different types of iOS devices or if you just want to push the dock back in, but they do hold your iPod in place very well.

Sound quality using the Bluetooth for phone calls is much better than I expected and the only thing I don't like about that setup is that the buttons on the stereo to answer and end a call aren't backlit. So, far I'm very happy with my purchase and this was easy to install and setup. Please try again later. Please try again later. SteveO 4.0 out of 5 stars I like it overall, but I've seen easier user interfaces. Please try again later. Please try again later. Zura Jijavadze 3.0 out of 5 stars Buttons and front panel are not fixed strictly. 2. iPhone mounts and charges, but not transferring stereo sound only mono sound in one speaker 3. Bluetooth playing playlist is working properly stereo 4. Hands free is hanging sometimes when phone is calling and I press on Green Button to answer a call, sometimes it hangs on Talking Mode and after closing call it stays on that mode. Last time I had to unplug power cable to reset system. In total it's good, I can say you get what you pay, but it is not 100% same as on picture. I can say that my satisfaction on this product is 75%. Please try again later. Please try again later. sfarch 5.0 out of 5 stars Since then I've come to rely on my iPhone for everything and missed my bluetooth speaker phone in my newer car that my wife has taken over. Anyway, this baby does it all, handsfree speakerphone, iPod, Pandora, and it has a removable faceplate since I still park the car on the street. But best of all it holds the iPhone so you can safely see it and operate controls without searching around car seats of various places for it. Added bonus is that my phone fits with the case on so I don't need to fiddle with the adapter included. Please try again later. Please try again later. Mark A. McSorley 5.0 out of 5 stars The sound quality was as expected as well. Installation was a breeze. Please try again later. Please try again later. There is no extra accessories to make the bluetooth function work. You just sync your phone to it. The iPhone does not have to be on the dock for it to work either. If you are listening to music and the phone rings, it overrides the music. It gives you the option on your iPhone when it rings to either use the stereo or the phone itself.
