I just recently removed the power supply to dust the insides and everything, but now it won't work correctly.

Every time I try to boot it up, it won't work. No lights come up or anything. The only lights that do come up are the three LED lights for the power switch, CR1, CR2, and CR4. Every time I press the power switch, CR2 lights up, letting me know that the power button works. I've tried switching the wattage from 110 to 220 for the first time and it still didn't work. The only thing that happens when the computer turns on is when I plug in the power cord directly into the power supply. The computer stays on for about a good 3 seconds with everything running before it shuts down again. I plan to replace the 277910001 HP 220 WATT Power Supply I have with another 277910001 HP 220 WATT Power Supply, or a 277979001 HP 220 WATT Power Supply Spare Part. Links to the parts My questions are What's wrong with my computer. Should I replace the power supply. Which power supply part should I choose for my Desktop. The original part 277910001 or the spare part 277979001. Thanks for all your help in advance everyone! My questions are What's wrong with my computer P1 as the main power supply, P2 to the hard drive, P3 to the processor power supply, P4 into the first DVD Drive, and P5 into the second DVD Drive. Those are all the connectors that fit anywhere. The rest of the connectors can't seem to go anywhere. We are working every day to make sure our community is one of the best.
